Pension Offered By Inland Steel To Avert Strike

By GIB STALEY

Pittsburgh, July 9 (AP)—A nationwide steel strike may begin one week from today although one segment of the industry is ready to go along partially on the CIO United Steelworkers' demands for a pension.

Inland Steel Corp., of Chicago, which employs about 16,000, opened the door on the pension issue last night. The steelworkers promptly closed it.

Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the Steelworkers, didn't comment on Inland's offer. However, another union spokesman said the proposal was "inadequate" and declared it will be rejected Monday.

Murray is believed willing to go down the line on his demand for pensions for the men who make steel. He hasn't said what amount he desires but the spokesman who termed Inland's offer inadequate said the union wants $150 monthly pensions.

Murray has maintained his usual tight-lipped silence on just how much of a wage increase he wants. His men have received three wage boosts since the end of World War II and now average $1.65 hourly.

The union's contract talks have been tied in knots by big steel's

Pistol Slug Solves Murder Of Singer

Convict Held In Killing Of Tenor At Atlanta

By LAMAR MATTHEWS

Atlanta, July 9 (AP)—On the evidence of a battered bullet, a coroner's jury asks that a South Carolina convict be charged with murdering Metropolitan opera tenor John Garris.

A Fulton (Atlanta) county coroner's jury last night ruled the death bullet was fired from a Belgian automatic seized from convict Grover (Tojo) Pulley.

The slug had been removed from near the German-born singer's heart by an autopsy surgeon. It caused Garris' death in a gloomy warehouse district alley early April 21.

The jury, after deliberating only 15 minutes, recommended that Pulley be charged with murder and brought to Atlanta to stand trial. He is in a South Carolina penitentiary.

The next step is up to the solicitor general and the grand jury, now in session. Police Lt. M. M. Copperger said if an early indictment is returned extradition proceedings will be started at once.

The rain-soaked body of the popular singer was found on the morning of April 21. Late the same day, Pulley was arrested driving a "souped up" car in Clinton, S.C. He later was given a 10-year prison sentence for carrying burglary tools.

The coroner's jury heard four ballistics experts give positive testimony the gun seized from Pulley killed Garris.

AUTO MISHAP INJURES TWO

Iron County Sheriff's Car Has Blowout

Two persons were injured, neither seriously, when a car driven by Sheriff Emery J. King of Crystal Falls, Iron county, blew a tire and rolled over on US-2 at Memory Lane near the west Escanaba city limits at 2:55 p. m. yesterday.

The injured are Mrs. King, who received a fractured collar bone, and Undersheriff Lester Manford, son-in-law of the sheriff, who suffered a fractured right arm.

The sheriff was transporting two women from Iron county to the state hospital for the insane at Newberry. They were not injured. The mental condition of one patient was described as "bad" by officers of the Delta county sheriff's department who investigated the accident. One of the patients, Mrs. Gertrude Jacques of Iron River, was taken to St. Francis hospital although she suffered only from shock.

Undersheriff Manford and Mrs. King received treatment at the hospital and then were released. Sheriff William Miron of Escanaba assigned a car and Deputy Emil Johnson to continue the trip to Newberry with the patients. He was accompanied by Sheriff King.

The accident occurred as Sheriff King's car was approaching the Escanaba city limits. The right rear tire blew out and the car rolled over off the pavement, coming to rest on its wheels. Damage to the car was estimated at $100.

Advocate Reopening Of State Hatcheries

Commercial fishermen of Delta county, at a meeting held in Garden Thursday night, went on record favoring the reopening of several state hatcheries for the propagation of whitefish and lake trout.

About forty Garden peninsula fishermen were in attendance. In addition, Roy Jensen and Walter Olson of Escanaba and Phil Martin and Gene Holm of Gladstone were present.

PLAN TO SHIP FISH BY PLANE

State, Fishermen Study Air Transportation

Daily air shipments of freshly caught fish from Michigan Great Lakes ports to the New York market soon may become a reality if plans of the Michigan Fish Producers' association, the state department of aeronautics and the state conservation department materialize.

To secure better prices and create a larger market for the fish hauled in from Great Lakes waters, the two state agencies are now working on the major problems—determining the biggest port centers in terms of air transportation facilities. Trial shipments have been made, packaging problems solved, and initial volume loads now are in progress.

No shipments have yet been made from Escanaba but test flights with a plane load of fish have been made from the Kinross airport in Chippewa county.

Roy Jensen of the Jensen and Jensen fish market in Escanaba said that after transportation arrangements are completed the plane would come here to pick up a load of fish, not less than 7,200 pounds. Smaller loads will be taken from Lower Michigan ports to Detroit, thence to the New York market.

Because the proposed air shipment of fish is only a fraction above the present rail rate, and because there could be two shipments weekly to New York compared with one by rail, local fishermen are expected to cooperate in the plan, Jensen said. Fish production is now off after the early summer peak but it will come back so that the necessary poundage can be obtained for a plane cargo. Escanaba is only 50 minutes by air from Detroit, Jensen pointed out.

Decision Requested On Bottle Club Ban; Legality Questioned

Lansing, (P)—Attorney General Stephen J. Roth has been asked to decide whether a 1949 law outlawing "bottle clubs" is legally on the statute books.

Deputy Secretary of State Harold W. Bradshaw asked for Roth's opinion after James B. Stanley, Kalamazoo attorney and former legislator, demanded the state department expunge the law from the books.

Stanley based his demand on the fact that Governor Williams vetoed the outlawing bill May 31 and later recalled his veto and approved the bill. At the time, the governor said his veto was based on a clerical error in the bill which was corrected by the legislative staff, removing his objections to it.

Stanley asked for the state department's decision "within a few days as I intend to resort to the courts of you refuse."

JOE DIMAGGIO, OUR NEW HERO

He's Sports' Colossus, Says Ruark

By ROBERT C. RUARK
New York — Every time I tear off on a trip I come home convinced of something, and this time it seems to be that Mr. Joseph Paul DiMaggio of San Francisco and the New York Yankees is a bigger social force than the Atlantic pact or even Judy Garland, the love-bitten spy.

It has been a long, long time since we bred a four-ply, fadeproof public idol — largely, I suppose, because we were flooded with so many semi-demigods during the war and after that there was no opportunity to concentrate on the enshrinement of one great big guy. Then, too, we have been endowed with so many crises as the leader of the west and the guardian of the world that we have had small time for such a simple idol as a baseball player.

But back fo' de wah, back before America began to play Hamlet on a global basis, we had some heroes who were not necessarily able to build you an A-bomb or hide a state paper in a pumpkin. I believe that Miss Gertrude Ederle once received considerable reception when she smeared her shape with grease and swam a channel.

Want A Hero Again

Mr. Lindbergh, a plane-driver, flew an ocean and found himself weighted down with fortune, while the Messrs. Jack Dempsey, Will Tilden, Bob Jones and Babe Ruth were easily as well known around the land as Mr. Truman's latest cabinet members.

This was at a time when the average dumb guy like your correspondent wishfully associated himself with people who could drive a golf or baseball a fur piece, or who could jockey a plane or swim a wide crick or hit another guy on the whiskers so hard it jarred his in-laws.

It seems we are becoming eager, again, to create hero who does not base his heroism on his ability to scare the hell out of everybody by doomsday pronouncement or his promises to deliver the world from unnamed evil. We are evidently so eager for a non-global type hero that we almost made one out of Leo Durocher, a generally unsavory character who momentarily appeared to be getting a bum deal we could understand. Leo was not being overrun by Communists, pleading for more billions or standing between us and the menace. It just looked for a little while as if he were taking a bad rap which jeopardized his job as a baseball manager.

Brother DiMaggio, the buck-toothed boy from Frisco, only plays ball for a living, and he has been playing it, this year, for little more than a week. But suddenly DiMag is our first real sports colossus since the Dempsey-Jones-Ruth era. Joe Louis was very probably the greatest big fighter of modern time, but Joe never touched godhood. Neither did DiMag—not until this year.

Fame By Losing

Dempsey acquired a lasting fame by losing, not winning. Dempsey was a willian until the Tunney fights. It has taken a bad foot to make a permanent effigy out of DiMaggio. The bone spur on the DiMaggio foot, which kept him out of action until last week, was a painful approximation of a laurel crown.

Joe is mobbed now by kids, as Ruth once was mobbed. The cons go crazy trying to keep the idolators off the field. DiMaggio's exploits occupy more drawing room conversation than Mr. Roosevelt once commanded. I cannot explain it and neither can Joe—it's just that all of a sudden his foot got better and he got back into the lineup and started to whack the baseball out of the to coin a phrase, yard, and the people went nuts.

DiMaggio does not hit as often as Ted Williams and he is nearly always third best in the home run department and he has none of Ruth's gusty personal habits and he is not viciously competitive like Cobb. He has small color

Eagles Will Hold District Meeting In Escanaba Sunday

Delegates representing three series of the Fraternal Order of Eagles in Michigan district No. 18 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will meet on Sunday, July 10, at the home of Escanaba Aerie No. 1088, in Escanaba, for a district meeting, President Clark Williams of the local aerie announced today.

The program for the affair calls for a business meeting and social program. The district session will be in charge of Werner A. Olson, Escanaba, district director, and Robert G. Ruecker of Marquette, district chairman.

Aeries to be represented are located in the following towns: Neogaune, Aerie 1944; Marquette, Aerie 2363, and Escanaba, Aerie 1088.

as a man or as an athlete—only a complete, sinuous, masterful competence at his job and a fantastic ability to deliver in the clutch.

Somewhat mysteriously, that quality has finally crept through to the crowds, and Joe DiMaggio is a national Titan at the tail-end of his career. You can't explain it, but you can be grateful, still, that this country has not outgrown its britches to a point where a DiMaggio can no longer achieve godhood for his ability with a bat and ball.

New York Mills, Minn. (AP)—Minnesota goes the man-bites-dog routine one better—a fish has helped catch fish.

ISHPEMING C-C BOOSTS FERRY

Favors Escanaba Route Over Menominee

Ishpeming — Directors of the Ishpeming Chamber of Commerce will support Escanaba's bid for ferry service, rather than that of Menominee, according to a decision made in their meeting Tuesday night.

A state committee is studying the possibilities of augmenting the Straits ferry service and both Menominee and Escanaba seek designation as Upper Peninsula's terminal for the proposed new service.

Directors of the Ishpeming Chamber decided the Escanaba terminal would be of more benefit to the Upper Peninsula, not only in saving of traveling time and serving a larger number of U.P. residents, but tourists would be more likely to come to the U.P. rather than go to northern Wisconsin, if they landed in Escanaba. It was pointed out that tourists landing at Menominee would be more likely to tour northern Wisconsin.

South 14th Street Is Too Narrow

THE proposal that a center stripe be painted the full length of South 14th street, discussed at the meeting of the Escanaba city council Thursday night, can hardly be regarded as a solution to the hazardous traffic problem on that thoroughfare.

The simple truth is that South 14th street is too narrow for the volume of traffic that it carries. Painting a center stripe, or painting half dozen stripes on the pavement, will not add an inch more width to the street, nor will it help to regulate the traffic.

With cars parked opposite each other on both sides of South 14th street, it is unsafe for two travelling cars to attempt to pass. It can be done, presumably, but only by the drivers with the Jimmy Lynch touch, and then only if the parked cars are flush with the curb, which they seldom are.

The city has been planning for some time to widen South 14th street in the same manner that North First avenue has been widened, but apparently the job will not be done this year. Until it is done, the serious traffic hazards on the street will continue and cannot be solved by any ledgerman with a paint brush. Except for widening the street, the other possible solution is parking restrictions on one or both sides of the street. Property owners in that area certainly would vigorously oppose that, and understandably so.

While we're on the subject of traffic control, we might add that the council's decision to install traffic control lights at the Y in North Escanaba does not appear to be any satisfactory solution to the traffic problem in that intersection. The present regulation, which provides for stop signs at Washington, Stephenson and Sheridan for southbound traffic appears to be a much better control than traffic lights will provide.

Causeway Will Get New Hearing

THE inter-peninsula communications commission, appointed recently by Governor Williams, will hold its first meeting at Mackinac Island today. Among other things, the commission will study reports on the proposed Straits of Mackinac bridge, the tunnel proposal and the shortened ferry route. The commission likewise is expected to study a proposal for an auxiliary ferry route between the two peninsulas of Michigan.

It is encouraging to note that the shortened ferry route at the Straits, rejected by Highway Commissioner Charles Ziegler, is going to be given a new hearing. Regardless of any auxiliary ferry route that may or may not be established, the heavy inter-peninsula traffic will always be concentrated at the Straits of Mackinac. That is the prime bottleneck and any satisfactory solution to the transportation problem must necessarily be established at that point.

The St. Ignace causeway, on which work was well advanced in pre-war years, offers a connection to the Lower Peninsula that is less than half the distance now travelled by the state ferries. Every consideration should be given to this shortened route as a means of improving ferry service at the Straits. There may be times in the year when wind conditions prevent use of the causeway but they are comparatively rare occasions.

DiMaggio's Lesson Good For Statesmen

JUST when you're ready to give up looking for a big story without a Communist hidden somewhere in the pile of type, along comes Joe DiMaggio.

Joe proceeds to carve himself an unforgettable niche in 1944 history, and there's not a thing in the world that Stalin or Vishinsky or any of their comrades can do about it.

Of course, making a splash is nothing new to Joltin' Joe, long a fixed star in the baseball heavens. But this time it's different. The big fellow's been having trouble with a bad heel and a lot of people are starting to wonder if he'll ever play again.

Maybe Joe is worried, too. He decides to force the issue a little. He gets a special shoe made for his troublesome right foot. Thus equipped, he edges his way back into the New York Yankees' lineup and goes up to Boston for a meeting with the hot Boston Red Sox team.

It's a crucial spot for DiMag. He's out of condition from inaction and hasn't seen any fancy pitching for months. And here he is, facing a flashy new Red Sox pitcher.

Joe passes his first test with a ringing single and romps over the plate on a teammate's homer. Next time up he finds a mate on base ahead of him. Now he slams a drive over the left field wall to count two runs and give the Yanks' their margin in a 5 to 4 victory.

The fans and the sportswriters cheer the hero's comeback showing. But it isn't enough for Joe, who wants things a bit more definite.

The second day out, the Red Sox leap into a 7 to 1 lead early and seem sure to win. A confident Boston hurler walks a couple of Yanks in the fifth, and up comes DiMaggio again. He plants a big smash over that left wall for his second homer of the series and his team is back in the game.

Soon after that the Yanks make it a 7-7 tie and Joe has another turn. Result: a screaming drive that clears a 60-foot-high wall and screen and wins the game for New York.

Like the others, the third game is close. Leading 3 to 2 in the seventh inning, the Yanks get two men aboard the bases. Once more Joe steps to the plate, this time against Mel Farnell, Boston ace.

With a count of three balls and two strikes, DiMag crashes a terrific liner to left that smacks an electric light tower for a three-run homer and a third straight Yankee triumph.

That's the story. In three games, Joe hits four home runs, all decisive. He collects five hits altogether and drives home nine runs. Single-handedly he dumps a sizzling Boston team on its ear. And remember, he's out of practice and he's got a bad heel.

Joe's success was achieved in the tight little baseball world, where events don't resemble too closely the bigger realm of national and world affairs.

In Joe's world, action is direct and conclusive. Usually when you play nine innings you get a result. It is clear—nobody argues about what nine or seven means. Each day's effort produces decision, neat and complete.

Our statesmen might say that, given some talent, achievement in this compact world of Joe's aren't exactly startling. After all, it's only a game.

But we wouldn't agree. Skill and grace, and wit and courage are always a lesson, no matter how small their arena. It might be a healthy thing for some of our simorous statesmen to take a good look at Joltin' Joe, a spunky fellow all the way.

Russian Demand Lacks Good Faith

SOVIET RUSSIA has renewed its demand for abolition of atomic warfare. The Russian proposal, long expected, was presented to the diplomatic conference on war conventions at Geneva this week.

Russia is not alone in its advocacy of abolition of atomic warfare. Virtually every country in the world, including the United States which has a stockpile of atomic bombs, favors this proposal. It is Russia that has blocked international agreement towards this end, paradoxical as that may seem in the light of the Russian demand at Switzerland.

Outlawing of atomic warfare can be realized only if there is international control of atomic energy. International control can be achieved only if all of the countries in the world agree to unrestricted inspection of atomic plants and production of raw materials. Russia has steadfastly refused to permit international inspection.

The Soviet proposal for outlawing atomic warfare would be more generously received if Russia would show a healthier attitude in its relations with other nations. The Soviets have continually threatened world peace since the end of the recent war and the present Russian demand for outlawing the atom in warfare does not come in good faith.

PAUL POPENOE POPS OFF (Milwaukee Journal)

Serious minded folks who forgathered at the social hygiene institute of the University of Cincinnati summer school heard Dr. Paul Popenoe denounce equal pay for equal work and suggest that a man be paid according to the size of his family.

He would have a base wage paid to everyone and then supplement this with an allowance for a dependent wife (or husband) and dependent children.

We wonder whether Dr. Popenoe, who is the director of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, has figured out that his plan might leave the family man worse off than he is at present.

Many employers now make some informal upward adjustment when Joe Doakes has a new baby in the home. But what employer in his right mind would hire a man with six kids instead of a bachelor, if the employer knew he would be forced to pay a wage according to the size of the family—regardless of the work produced?

It sounds to us as though Dr. Popenoe has popped off.

Many autos, like their drivers, are bent on careless driving.

Loyalty Program Needs Change

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington.—In this space recently the details of the loyalty case against Mrs. Anne V. Alling were told. On the most flimsy hearsay reports, most of it on the level of guilt by association, Mrs. Alling had been found disloyal by a regional loyalty board and removed from her position in the "blind pool" of the Veterans Administration where she did routine typing having nothing to do with secretarial work.

It is good to be able to report that the top loyalty board has now cleared Mrs. Alling and ordered that she be restored to her position. Presumably she will be compensated for the eight weeks that she was suspended on a finding of the fourth regional loyalty board that she was disloyal.

While it is good news that what was so obviously an injustice has now been corrected, the fact remains that there should never have been an "Alling case." The cost in time and money of government officials, to say nothing of the misery endured by the principal in the case, must be put down as a total loss to democratic government.

If Mrs. Alling had been everything that was alleged and a great deal more—the front and center of a Communist "apparatus"—she could have done the government not the least harm. Nearly blind from a series of eye operations, she transcribed dictaphone records of letters relating to veterans' insurance.

HAS INDEPENDENT MIND

As the record of her case showed, Mrs. Alling is a woman of independent and inquiring mind. Her religious background gave her an idealism that more conventionally minded people might have considered fuzzy and sentimental.

Even before the top loyalty board, she maintained her independence of thought, refusing merely to recant a political heresy with the proper words and phrases. That may have been misguided in view of the fact that her livelihood and her reputation were at stake. But it seems to me to be a decidedly American trait and I, for one, am glad that it still survives.

Letters have come to me indicating that the Alling case is not an isolated instance. They recite similar examples in which trivialities, gossip and malicious tale-bearing have been magnified out of all proportion and used to destroy men and women who protest their loyalty and their innocence of any wrongdoing.

One fact emerges that has, it seems to me, a direct bearing on efficiency in government quite apart from considerations of ethics and justice. In the record of every government worker who has been investigated beyond the routine of a standard check, details of the investigation are set forth.

STIGMA ON RECORD

That is to say, no matter how completely he has been vindicated nor how absurd and baseless the charges were shown to have been, the investigation trails after him throughout his government service. It is a stigma stamped on the individual for his entire government service.

Take the case of a government employee indicted after a preliminary loyalty investigation. Because of his special skill and excellence he is to be transferred to a more responsible position in another government department. But the division chief in the other department takes due notice of the loyalty investigation and being timid—or prejudiced—he decides against what might be a risk in a time when suspicion and fear are rampant.

So the government employee does not get the transfer and his abilities are not used to the best advantage. This is not theory. It is happening in government today as a result of the intense preoccupation with the loyalty search.

The time has come, in my opinion, quickly to wind up the loyalty program except as it covers employees in secret or restricted work. This last would be a small fraction of the whole. At the same time it should be possible for the civil service commission to order a purge of the files of individual employees, removing so-called loyalty data that is obviously irrelevant and even downright ridiculous.

In the Judith Coplon case the government proved it has ample resources for apprehending an employee engaged, as the trial demonstrated, in traitorous acts. The voluminous evidence broke down the defendant's frantic effort to find an alibi for her action. With such safeguards as were shown in that case, we should no longer feel it is necessary to look nervously over every government employee's shoulder every day.

AGAINST YOURSELF—"Let's assume you keep on doing this sort of thing-taking that first drink while there is every reason not to; getting disastrously drunk when you absolutely know you must not. Obviously you are drinking in spite of your will and directly against your own best interests. Something has gone wrong. You cannot 'take it or leave it' because you say you 'need it.' Disaster follows. But you do not learn and a little later the debacle is repeated. This time it is worse. To your disaster and consternation, you get very drunk."

THE HANG-OVER—"Now suppose that you get drunk because you are hurt, angry or worried. Or just because you are bored. And that you often get much tighter than you planned. 'Never again,' you say, during the hang-over. But you soon forget the penalty and repeat the performance. Has alcohol become a necessity?"

THE SYMPTOMS—"These are some of the tell-tale symptoms which usually spell trouble: which set the alcoholic apart from his fellow drinkers. Average people drink for fun and can stop or moderate when they wish. But the alcoholic drinks on with little or no control, as if in response to a strange inner compulsion which has him in its grip. Members of Alcoholics Anonymous know that such lack of control means stormy seas ahead. This mysterious failure of the will is the prelude to deadly alcoholic obsession.

"When badly out of control most of us struggled desperately but could not stop. Nor did we drink moderately for long. Filled with the delusion that we could drink like our friends, we tried again and again to 'take it or leave it' but could do neither. Always came the inevitable bender, or a lapse into ceaseless, unhappy drinking. Families, friends and employers threw up their hands in hurt bewilderment."

TAKING STOCK—"We surely hope that he is right—and, of course, he may be.

"Yet every AA member can look back and clearly see that he was out of control years before he admitted it.

"So we earnestly hope that you, too, will carefully test your own control of alcohol with an open mind; and this will not be easy, for no potential alcoholic likes to face the fact that he cannot drink.

"We of Alcoholics Anonymous are very happy that so many drinkers are taking stock, recognizing in themselves the symptoms that almost certainly mean alcoholism. They come into AA and realize they have escaped those last years of boundless misery which most of us know too well."

WANTING TO STOP—"Wanting above all else to stop, realizing that every reason for drinking was but a crazy excuse, we too were baffled. Special treatments,

AN ALCOHOLIC—A man I know and admire approached me in Escanaba the other day and without preamble informed me that he is an alcoholic. I told him that he does not look like one. He knows that, too. But it does not change his conviction that through Alcoholics Anonymous he is on the way to helping himself, and others, in heading back from the blind alley of alcoholism. He said he wanted to write something on the subject for this column and I encouraged him.

"Am I an alcoholic? This is the grim and practical question which faces every problem drinker who is out of control. 'What do we mean by lack of control?' you ask.

"Suppose, for example, that you have an engagement of great importance—a situation where even one drink would make a very bad impression. You resolve to drink nothing, yet strangely enough you do drink. You take just one because you say you 'need it.' Disaster follows. But you do not learn and a little later the debacle is repeated. # BUILD LARGEST SHIP ON LAKES

Inland Steel Launches 678-Foot Carrier

Lorain, O.—Inland Steel company's new ore carrier, the "Wilfred Sykes," largest ship ever built on fresh water, was launched here today in the yard of the American Ship Building company, designer and builder of the ship.

In a ceremony attended by Inland and ship building company officials, and hundreds of other spectators, Mrs. Wilfred Sykes christened the new ore carrier, which until today was known in the Lorain ship building yard as Hull No. 866. Her husband, in whose honor the ship has been named, is chairman of the executive committee and former president of Inland Steel Company. The ceremony took place at 11:30 a.m., Cleveland time.

Veteran craftsmen at the ship yard, some of whom have been building ships for half a century, said that the "Sykes" is the "finest" ship ever built here.

CARRY 21,500 TONS

It will be the largest ore carrier on the lakes—678 feet overall; will carry the most cargo—20,000 long tons at intermediate draft... 21,500 long tons at summer draft; will have the greatest speed—16.5 miles per hour loaded; will have the most powerful engines of any ore carrier—7,000 horsepower; contains 350,000 rivets and 300,000 feet of welding, and will weigh more than 15,000,000 pounds without cargo, and more than 60,000,000 pounds loaded.

The "Sykes" contains more than a mile of 12-inch diameter pipe through which water ballast will be pumped; has a cruiser stern, streamlined rudder and an 18 foot, 6 inch diameter propeller; will have 17 tons of anchors—two 6-ton Bower anchors forward and a 5-ton stern anchor, and will have 2,160 feet of 2 1/8-inch forged alloy steel chain; 540 feet of 1 7/8-inch forged alloy steel chain.

Mooring lines will be wire rope 1 1/8 inches in diameter. Hatch covers each weigh seven tons and are 11 feet by 44 feet. There are 10 hatches, with hatch covers being sealed with patent hatch clamps, lifted on and off by a gantry crane mounted on the spar deck.

Ready in 1950

The "Wilfred Sykes" will have running ice water drinking fountains for the crew. The crew will also have its own recreation rooms, private toilets, showers, inner-spring mattresses and other comforts. Tunnels on the main deck level on each side of the ship enable the crew to go from the bridge to the engine room without being exposed to the weather. Mechanical ventilation is supplied to all rooms and quarters.

The galley will be all electric with reach-in refrigerators. The ship will have accommodations for 39 crew members.

Owners' quarters, located on the Texas deck, will accommodate eight persons with the observation room facing aft.

The ship will be equipped with all the latest navigating devices and aids to safety, including ship-to-shore-telephone; radar, gyrocompass, and radio direction finder. It has a modern design, streamlined superstructure fore and aft.

With the completion of the launching, the "Sykes" will be towed to the shear legs, the 100 ton derrick, which will lift heavy equipment into the engineering space. Most of the smaller machinery has already been installed. This includes mooring winches, anchor windlasses, pumps, generators, etc.

The ship will be dry docked for the installation of the rudder and

Library Adventure

By Arnold Mulder

"Robinson Crusoe" that are truly relevant to the study of that classic. About 30 years ago the late Lucius L. Hubbard, at one time a regent of the University of Michigan, published a little volume called "Sjouke Gabbes," with the subtitle, "A Dutch Source for Robinson Crusoe." Briefly, Mr. Hubbard's thesis was that Hollander named Hendrik Smeeks published a story in 1708, eleven years before the publication of "Robinson Crusoe," that contained the basic substance of Defoe's novel.

Hubbard made out such good case that I for one can't understand how anyone with an open mind can honestly assess the evidence without coming to the conclusion that Defoe owed a great deal to the Hollander's book.

In parallel columns Hubbard compares many passages from the two books, and sometimes they are so similar that it is hard to suppose that Defoe's account does not echo Smeek's very language.

Yet so far as I know, no Defoe scholar has accepted the Hubbard theory. Even James Sutherland, a British authority on Defoe, who published a biography in the thirties, does not so much as mention the theory. The Smeeks story is unimportant as a work of art, while Defoe's story is a great novel. Giving the Hollander credit would not detract from the Defoe stature. After all, Shakespeare found most of his material in old plays.

It had long been supposed that Daniel Defoe's family had died out. Although the author of "Robinson Crusoe" had so many children that getting enough for them to eat and wear kept that writer's nose chronically on the well-known grindstone, his descendants did not keep up this record of large families. Scholars have often asserted that the Defoe family had died out. Proof now advanced to the contrary doubtless gives the discoverer of the fact a considerable prestige.

The average citizen, however, probably flips the page with the lukewarm remark, "So what?" And that question is not as unintelligent as literary savants may imagine. After all, what difference does it make? Defoe wrote "Robinson Crusoe" just 230 years ago. He was a nobody living from hand to mouth.

Although the success of that book and those that followed it eased the financial pressure on him, he never quite succeeded in getting out of hot water. His great novel is as great as it was at the time it was published. The discovery of the identity of two of the author's descendants can't affect the importance of the novel in one way or another.

Instead of becoming excited about such an irrelevant detail in regard to a famous writer the person really interested in literature is likely to use the incident as an incitement to reading the book or rereading it. In regard to "Robinson Crusoe" that would be genuinely intelligent, for the Defoe classic repays rereading, no matter how often one has read it before.

Apple River Name Changed to Peavy

Renaming of the Apple River Mill company retail store at Escanaba to Peavy Feed Stores has been announced by Emil Ahlin local store manager.

Ownership of the company remains the same and no changes in the management, policy or personnel of the company have been made.

The change in name was made to more closely identify the retail feed stores with their affiliate organization, F. H. Peavy and Company. Established in 1873, F. H. Peavy and Company operates an extensive line of country elevators throughout the grain growing states of the Northwest.

But the bonus records show Michigan ex-GIs scattered far across the globe. Some of them probably still are in military or government service, the bonus section said, but others appeared to have settled down abroad. Witness the 31 veterans in Australia.

Bauman, 32, has about 400 of the wingless chickens.

The advantages?

Well, for one thing, Bauman said, his birds have white meat where others have only bony wings. It makes them better eating.

And besides, no high fence is needed to keep the chickens in the yard. The birds can't fly at all, and Bauman says they can only "high jump" 18 to 20 inches. A two-foot barrier is high enough.

Bauman says the chickens lay an average number of eggs, but he says in time he expects the breed will out-lay other chickens as well as produce more meat. The reason is that the energy an ordinary chicken wastes in "useless flapping and flying about can be utilized in production of meat and eggs," Bauman said.

Lack of wings also makes the drumsticks bigger. That, Bauman said, is because the chicken's upper leg has to work harder to hold the bird upright.

The bird isn't perfect yet, Bauman said. He still gets about five chickens with stubby little wings out of every 100. Those are carefully weeded out of the breeding stock.

L-Shaped Cottage Worth Extra Cost

A 50-FOOT LOT will accommodate this neat, well-arranged bungalow, "The Brockton," and leave plenty of room for a garage driveway. The cost of the house may be reduced by limiting basement excavation to the space under living room, kitchen and bath.

Although it will cost slightly more to build than a house with a clean-cut rectangular plan, the L-shaped cottage, "The Brockton," introduced today by the "Home of the Week" Plan Service, has certain distinct advantages which justify the extra expense.

This all-on-one-floor dwelling, for instance, can be built on a lot with a 50-foot frontage and still leave room at either side for a cement driveway to a detached garage. The recessed front entrance at the angle of the "L" affords protection for callers as they wait at the door in inclement weather. Furthermore, the variation from the usual box-type construction gives this cottage a pleasing and distinctive appearance.

Can Cut Down Cubage

While total cubage of The Brockton is only 14,500 feet, this may be reduced to 12,300 feet by limiting the basement excavation to the area under the living room, kitchen and bathroom.

The outside walls of The Brockton may be finished with either shingles or clapboards, painted or stained. One man who built this house found blue-gray walls with bright-green shutters and trim and a green roof a good combination.

The front door opens into a small vestibule with a large coat closet. A door or arch at the left of the entry leads to a large living room, 16x11 feet in dimensions. Balancing the door from the front entry, in the same wall of the room, another door opens on a central hall connecting with the bedrooms and bath. At the opposite end of the room is the fireplace. The long inside wall is broken by a door to the kitchen. While the plan includes no dining room, the living room is large enough to accommodate a drop-leg table, for use in formal dinners.

Compact Kitchen

The kitchen has two windows and glazed door opening on the back yard. Working counter, sink and wall cabinets fill one outside wall of the kitchen, the other being left clear for a breakfast suite. Range and refrigerator are provided for in the room plan and stairs to the basement lead down from the kitchen.

A linen closet is built into the inner hall, adjacent to the bathroom. The bedrooms, 12x11 and 11x9 feet respectively, each have two windows and a clothes closet.

Insulation should be installed over all room ceilings. The overall dimensions of the Brockton are 33x21 feet.

Sidewall Material Is Key to Control Of Room Humidity

By SCIENCE SERVICE

Minneapolis—There is a relation between the humidity in a room and the material of which the walls of the room are made, it was pointed out here to the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers by Prof. E. R. Quer of Pennsylvania State College.

The fundamental thing that heating engineers must determine to make proper installations is how fast moisture can be transmitted through the sidewall material. He described a new instrument for measuring this vapor transmission.

The rate of transmission is known to technical men as the "permeance" of the material. Many devices have been used to measure permeance, he said, but a new method has been developed at the institution he represents. It overcomes some of the limitations of former methods and provides a means of testing thicker materials.

This new method involves the use of an apparatus in which the material being tested is sealed between two cups, thus eliminating the need for humidity control of the surrounding atmosphere.

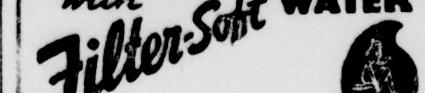

Within one cup of the double-cup cell a pan of water is placed. In the other is placed a water absorbing substance, what chemists call a desiccant. Water from the pan gradually passes

Vacation In Coffin Has Its Advantages

By HAL BOYLE
New York, (AP) — Rainy day roundup:

An unconscious hero of our times is Ray Emmert of Zanesville, Ohio.

This 40-year-old ex-soldier solved his personal unemployment problem by having himself buried alive in a coffin six feet underground.

For weeks thousands of curious people thronged to his temporary grave and dropped coins into a contribution box for the privilege of staring down through a ten-inch observation tunnel at Emmert's placid countenance.

After 45 days Emmert emerged, collected his financial tribute, and claimed a new "buried alive" record. His chief complaint was that he got "tired of looking at nothing but faces."

The whole experience typifies the desire of twentieth century man to escape from oppressive reality. And it may set a pattern for the man of the future.

There is no reason why every man shouldn't, from time to time, follow Emmert's example. All he needs to "get away from it all" is a shovel, a cheap pine coffin—and a friend to cover him up.

The milk man could lower him a fresh bottle of milk every morning, and the delivery boy from the delicatessen could drop him a ham sandwich or a hard-boiled egg once or twice a day. It would be a wonderful way to spend a restful vacation—right in your own back yard. And you wouldn't have to go through that annual argument with your wife over whether to go to the mountains or the seashore.

What could be better? No worries, no sunburn, no vexing mosquitoes, no hotel bills, no sore muscles.

This relaxing fad of being buried alive might well sweep the country except for one thing:

Every man has an uneasy feeling that, once he was six feet underground, his relatives and friends might decide he wasn't worth the trouble of digging up.

Overheard on a bus:

"Women are just showoffs. Why do you think they wear dresses, use lipstick and let their hair grow long? Just to attract attention—that's all."

What can a man believe anymore?

The corset industry says Americans buy 3,500,000 "falseies" a year.

And, as if that weren't bad enough, Manhattan butcher shops are now using rubber parsley in their display cases.

A friend of mine was worried because his child was slow to learn to talk. All the neighbors' small fry of the same age were gabbing infantile gobbledegook, but his boy remained stubbornly silent. Wouldn't utter a word.

Then, one morning at breakfast, the child looked up and said gravely:

"This is now."

The papas is convinced now he's got a genius.

The late Don Marquis, one of the best loved writers of his time, once did a stint in Hollywood. But the film colony's method of work made him nervous—six weeks to do a script, then a month of idleness while his agent turned up another job.

Marquis fled back to New York. Later a friend, seeking his help on a script, called and said:

"You want to make some money?"

"How much will it cost me?" asked Marquis cautiously.

New Houses In Rock

More than 20 new houses have been built in the Rock area since World War II and several others are now under construction in this sparsely populated community. The top house here was built in 1946 by Herman Johnson, contractor. He razed an old school building and built this house in five months, using some salvaged materials. It has six rooms and a bath. A large picture window faces out of the front, and in the living room Johnson has built a large plaster fireplace. The building, 32 by 34 feet is finished in brick veneer.

The lower house is the new Emil DeBacker built, at the same time that he erected the large theatre and bowling alley in Rock. The house is completely modern throughout, and is finished with standard siding.

DeBacker completed his house in 1948. It measures 40 by 32 feet and has seven rooms, set on full basement. Hardwood flooring was used throughout the house. The theatre building, which seats 375, was completed last fall. The theatre is 36 by 100 feet and the six bowling alleys occupy a room 36 by 128 feet.

BIGGEST ORE BOAT On Lakes Planned By 2 Professors

By JOHN F. MAYHEW

Ann Arbor, Mich., (AP)—The Wilfred Sykes was launched recently at Lorain, O., as the biggest carrier in the Great Lakes fleet. But it's more than that.

The 698-foot super freighter is another monument to a type of educator—the man who can practice what he teaches.

The carrier—first to be launched on the Great Lakes since 1943—was born of the efforts of the Inland Steel Co., and two University of Michigan professors.

The owner and builder sought the help of Prof. Louis A. Baier and Assistant Prof. Charles W. Spooner, Jr., because they wanted the help of experts. Baier is chairman of the university's department of naval architecture and marine engineering.

In Professor Baier, 60, they had an authority on power plants, draft and ship length; in 38-year-old Professor Spooner, an expert in the field of hull design.

The two provided data for the construction of the Wilfred Sykes from tests run in the university's naval test tank.

The result—a carrier 35 feet longer, three feet wider, one and a half miles faster and of 5,600 tons greater capacity than any other Great Lakes carrier afloat.

Years ago, industrialists would have scoffed at the idea of consulting a professor on such a practical project.

Today, they do just that to get the best available talent.

Baier, in charge of the university's test tank, is a former ship designer and industrialist himself. Spooner has an extensive and varied background in the field of engineering.

The abilities of both are highly respected by the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and principal ship yards of the country.

The two are based in the university's engineering research institute, headquarters of an amazing group of men who teach as well as practice.

River Front Plants Razed In $1,500,000 Fire At Bangor, Me.

Bangor, Maine, (AP)—A quarter mile stretch of industrialized river front was blackened by an explosion-studded fire early Thursday. Property owners figured losses at $1,500,000.

Five fuel plants, a bus garage, and store houses of a hardware and a plumbing supply firm were leveled. Drums of gasoline and oil caused the explosions.

Four big gasoline and oil tanks were in danger for more than three hours. At times the flames licked the sides of the tanks.

Five fire departments won their spectacular battle shortly before 2 a.m. (Eastern Daylight Time). They stopped the flames just north of the big Maine Central Railroad freight sheds.

Visible for miles from this Penobscot river city of 30,000, the fire attracted thousands of curious.

Legislature Adopts Library Aid Bill

State aid for public libraries amounting to $362,085.00, plus $9,540.00 for administration of the fund was appropriated in the final session of the 1949 legislature last Thursday. Spokesman for the Michigan Library Association and the State Board for Libraries agreed that this amount will be sufficient to maintain the public library program on its present level.

"This $362,085.00 is one of the smallest slices in the State's total grants in aid," said Miss Alice Louise LeFevre of Kalamazoo, president of the Michigan Library association. "It is not a starvation diet, but it is not a balanced diet either."

The original request made to the budget committee for library aid was one million dollars for the year 1949-50. This amount would have provided for increased library service and the establishment of more new libraries.

The appropriation will be distributed according to a new formula which was passed by the legislature. The new formula will stimulate local support of libraries and raise library service standards by "helping those who help themselves."

Speaking for the State Board for Libraries, Mrs. Loleta D. Fyan, State Librarian said, "Though the funds we are given to work with this coming year are modest, we are looking forward to Statewide improvement of library service standards as the result of the new distribution formula. If State grants are increased in coming years, we may yet extend library service to the 750,000 Michigan residents who have no public libraries today."

Current Business Recession Seems Piece-Meal One

(Editor's note: How deep is the business recession in the United States, and how long will it last? What is in store for the public as we slide away from the all-time record boom of 1948? Sam Dawson, Associated Press business news columnist, surveys the scene at the halfway point of 1949 in three articles. The first follows.)

whole world is watching what happens to us. There are signs the slump is becoming world-wide, and we are the business ringleaders now.

Most business indicators here—but not all—are lower than in 1948, but most people expected that, even back in 1948. And this time most businessmen were well prepared for the slump.

Indicators less favorable now than at the start of this year include: The Federal Reserve Board's industrial production index; electric power output, lowest since April but 4 per cent higher than a year ago; steel production, lowest since April, 1948; crude oil production, lowest since March, 1947; business loans, lowest since spring of 1948; business failures, steadily mounting; and retail trade, down four per cent so far this year.

But indicators which are more favorable than at the start of this year include: Freight car loadings, highest since November, until the coal mine holiday; auto production, highest since 1929; soft coal production, higher until the holiday stoppage; engineering awards, up seasonally to the second highest level of the year; bank clearings, also a seasonal high for the year.

Jobs Scarce

Unemployment is increasing, and may well get higher in the months ahead. But employment is up, too, reflecting both the steady increase in the total labor force and the seasonal trek to the farms.

Corporate earnings are sliding from their peak in the last quarter of 1948, but are still about as high as this time last year.

Inventories are being held down, but are higher than this time last year—most observers think they are not dangerous this time.

The total of Americans' personal incomes has been dropping this year from its all-time December high. It's still about two per cent higher than this time last year. Savings continue high, both as to national totals and rate of increase.

Strikes could jolt us all sharply, but might create new pipelines of demand to be filled later. Wage increases might raise purchasing power of those who get them, but also raise production costs of those who grant them. The cold war drains the public purse but also makes customers for some industries.

Business would feel the effect of any change in the armament and European Aid programs.

At mid-year, most businessmen are braced against some rough sailing in the months to come. A few still hope they'll be proved wrong.

FRIENDS gather, look over that long bonnet and wish they had as much Fireball life as you have here.

They size up the broad windshield and narrow corner posts—and don't have to be told how these things step up "see-power."

They appraise the smart styling, the roomy interiors, the usability of luggage space—and agree you've made a buy.

But don't stop, please, with letting them look. Invite them in and introduce them to some of the special pleasures you'll know as a Buick owner.

Show them, for instance, how completely different Dynaflow Drive is, with every mile cushioned by flowing oil and none of the rigid harshness of direct-drive cars.

Let them sample the matchless Buick ride, with all four wheels cradled on soft, coil springs and low-pressure tires made still easier-riding by extra-wide rims.

Point out how solid this Buick feels. That's what you get from husky frames, low-swung weight, and power delivered through a torque-tube instead of the rear springs.

For the truth is, this Buick's a bargain on much, much more than you can see.

It's a big buy on the solid goodness a demonstration quickly makes plain. On increasingly favorable delivery dates. On attractive price. On the kind of "deal" your Buick dealer makes.

That's why we keep saying "Better see your Buick dealer—and get that order in promptly!"

Milwaukee Ready To Welcome UAW

Auto Workers Open Noisy Convention Sunday

By GLENN ENGLE

Milwaukee, Wis., July 9 (P)—This city hung out the welcome bunting today for 2,400 convention delegates representing a million CIO United Auto Workers across the country.

The UAW convention, traditionally the noisiest one in organized labor, opens Sunday and runs all next week.

But except for receptions for outside speakers and possibly a few floor arguments, far less than usual excitement is expected.

President Walter Reuther and other top union leaders presumably will have nothing more than token opposition for re-election.

With them firmly in the saddle, only a minimum of resistance to the proposed resolutions and constitutional amendments is expected.

Reuther will address the delegates Sunday, a short time after his president's report is made public.

Outside speakers will include Leon Keyserling, vice chairman of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisors; CIO President Philip Murray; Congressman Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. (D-N.Y.) and Mrs. Anna Arnold Hedgeman, assistant to the federal security administrator.

State Solon Held For Waving Gun at His Rival In Love

Detroit, July 9 (P)—State Representative Frank A. Mahoney, Detroit Democrat, was held by police here today as they investigated a report he used an automatic pistol as a "persuader" during an argument over a girl friend.

Detective Sergeant Richard Newkumet of Fort Station said Mahoney was booked for investigation of assault and possession of an unregistered gun.

According to Newkumet's account, Mahoney, 49, summoned Marcel Thick, 31, to his home Friday night to discuss which of the two men was the boy friend of Miss June Brown, 30. Police said both had been keeping company with her.

Miss Brown's parents own the house in which Legislator-Bartender Mahoney lives.

When Thick arrived, Mahoney met him at the foot of the stairs, an automatic in his hand. Thick rushed away and called police.

Plush California Hotel Room Ready For Aly and Rita

Del Mar, Calif., July 9 (P)—A four-room hotel suite, with $5,000 worth of special furnishings, will be ready for Rita Hayworth and Aly Khan when the racing season opens here late this month.

Owen Nichols, Del Mar hotel manager, said yesterday that one of the owners of the hotel had instructed him to prepare for the coming of the actress and her Indian prince.

The hotel last month said it could not accommodate Aly and Rita because of the size of their party, which a telegram requesting reservations said would total 22.

The hotel also said it was not equipped to provide Aly with his native foods. Nichols said he still doesn't know "what we're going to do about the exotic foreign dishes."

Balboa, Canal Zone, July 9 (P)—A U.S. navy patrol plane crashed in flames into the sea with nine persons aboard yesterday during a test flight.

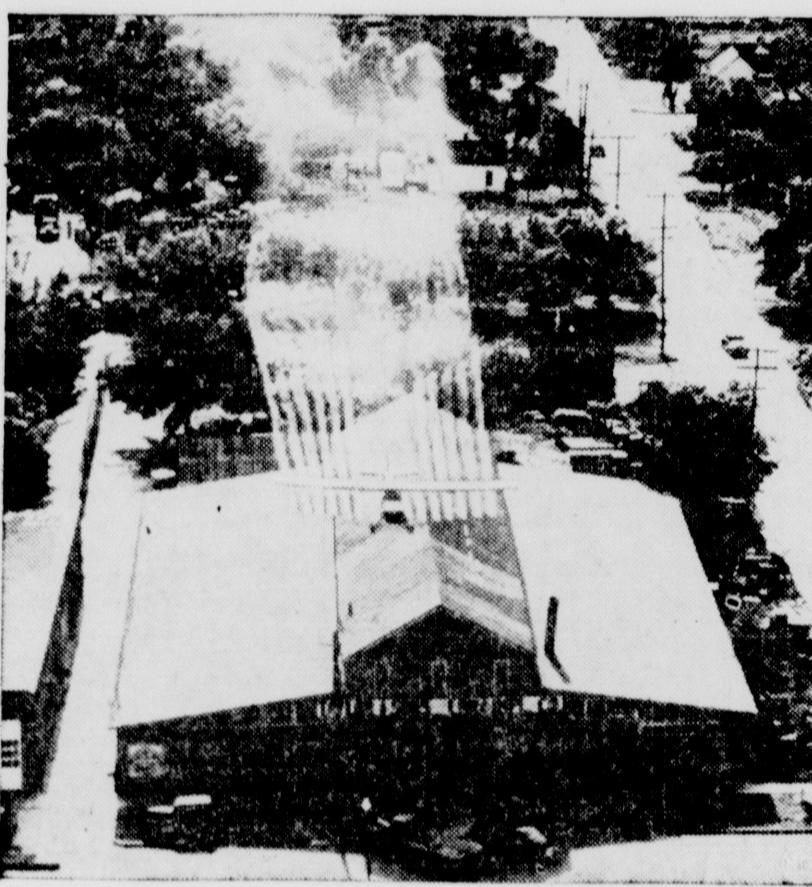

Crash boats and other surface craft sped to the scene. Latest reports said only one body had been found.

Those aboard the plane included a pilot, copilot and seven crewmen. No names were released by naval authorities.

South Africa Tribe Chiefs Refuse To Accept White Queen

Johannesburg, South Africa, (P)—The proud chiefs of the Bamangwato tribe stuck to tradition, refusing to accept a white queen.

Regent Tshekedi Khamma and 43 chieftains—including two in direct succession to tribal leadership—went into voluntary exile to show their disfavor with Ruth Williams, London typist wife of young Seretse Khamma, chieftain designate.

Seretse and Ruth were married in London, while he was in the British capital studying law. He returned and though he was supported by the majority of his tribe, the regent said "no." Seretse's wife remained in London.

The regent and his chieftains announced their exile in a letter to the British high commissioner, Evelyn Baring, in Pretoria, in which they called on the British government to start a judicial inquiry into the situation and say "once and for all" what position Seretse and his wife hold in the South African country.

YOUTHS OFFER IDEAS ON LAWS

Boy "Governors" State Views On Legislation

By JANE EADS

Washington.—Here's the kind of legislation the average American high school youth, as represented by boy "governors" of 22 states, would like to see:

- Compulsory sex education in all high schools.

- Provision for high school courses in communism, socialism and fascism as a means of understanding and combating them.

- Minimum wages for teachers with the lowest level at $2,400.

- No racial, religious or other discrimination in any of the schools or in any of the states.

- Close supervision and control of public places, such as hotels, restaurants, tourist homes and summer camps.

- Education in medical health in relationship to venereal disease and tuberculosis.

- Conservation of natural resources, especially in relation to reforestation and pollution of rivers and streams, and provision for special study of every federal project involving the appropriation or purchase of state and private lands.

- Compulsory teaching of driving and traffic safety in all high schools and state inspection of motor vehicles as well as periodic re-examination of all drivers.

- Treatment of the mentally ill, with the primary aim of curing them and returning them to normal, useful living within society.

- High school sponsored health and accident insurance covering members of varsity athletic teams.

These bills were adopted here by the First National Conference of Boy Governors from 22 states, held in the Senate Office Building. The conference was sponsored by the nation's Hi-Y Clubs, organized by the Y. M. C. A.

The bills were selected from some 200 passed by model states early this spring by boys representing some 500,000 high school youths throughout the nation. The young "governors" seek to have them implemented in their own state legislatures.

"This legislation," a Y. M. C. A. official says, "represents a cross-section of the serious thinking of American boys and girls. To my mind it's a little better than the old man's."

firms. Drafting of a $15,000,000,000 shelf of local public works. Letting of defense contracts and placing of federal works in areas of serious unemployment. Loans of up to $1,000 to help payless workers move from "distress areas."

The new and final draft, it was reported, will include these new features:

Giving the President control of a $3,500,000,000 emergency relief fund. Grants from this fund would be matched by the states on a 70-30 basis—70 per cent federal, 30 per cent state funds.

Creating a commission to analyze federal, state and local tax policy, from the standpoint of cushioning violent swings of boom and deflation.

Creating a presidential assistant to coordinate the government's various methods of attack on joblessness. One of his duties would be to certify areas as being in distress and thus qualified for special federal help.

Trouble Spots Temporary

There were indications that an effort will be made to get the bill to the Senate floor before Congress adjourns. The strategy, one informant said, is to make it a substitute for the Murray-Sparkman bill, offered early in the session, to broaden the lending powers of Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

This automatically would refer the bill to the Senate Labor committee, where the Murray-Sparkman bill now reposes—and where the new measure is considered likely to get more sympathetic treatment than in the finance committee.

The midyear economic message is a regular White House report. It has assumed prime importance this year because of sagging business activity, rising unemployment, and the anxiety these trends have produced.

Informants said Mr. Truman will not gloss over the trouble spots. But he will interpret them as the aches and pains which must be suffered as the economy readjusts itself from a violent postwar boom and adjusts to the long pull of peace-time.

A steady, long-term rise in the country's production, he is reported as planning to say, is vital if the country is to enjoy high employment and high purchasing power over the years, absorbing new workers in the labor force, and avoiding periodic depressions.

Various factors would go into such a production rise. The Senate Labor committee suggested last night that a boost in the minimum wage from 40 cents an hour to 70 would "bolster purchasing power against recession." The committee, which has unanimously endorsed legislation for such a raise, made the statement in its formal report on the bill.

Dr. F. S. Leeder, director of the state health department's bureau of disease control, said the number of polio cases this year is "slightly higher" than last year on the same date but that the increase "has no significance."

"Polio," he said, "is an unpredictable disease and no one can tell what will happen with it. It might increase sharply and it might fall off. There is no reason to become hysterical about it."

Dr. Leeder returned from a visit to Itasca where seven cases of polio have been reported, including two deaths. The residents of the community, much upset, are being summoned to a city-wide meeting to learn how to detect and control the disease, he said.

Dr. Leeder reported the outbreak this year is "well scattered" throughout the state with the only focus in Gratiot county. He said that county has been unusually free of the disease for several years and could expect a "balancing" incidence of the illness.

The number of cases in Gratiot county is "not unusually large," Dr. Leeder declared.

Michigan has had 58 cases this year compared with 19 at the same time last year, but the health department emphasized that the seasons started earlier this year.

BEGIN DRILLING AT WHITE PINE

Copper Range Company
May Open Mine

Houghton, Mich.—Diamond drilling is again proceeding on the Copper Range company's great White Pine tract, an area having a potential ore reserve of close to 200,000,000 tons, carrying about 22.3 pounds of copper per ton.

The drilling is for the purpose of further indicating the extent of the ore body. Incidentally, the reduction in the price of copper will not affect the plans of the company for developing White Pine, notwithstanding the fact that no development work was carried on last year.

The near two hundred million tons of potential ore reserves includes approximately 107,000,000 tons of shale averaging 23.3 pounds per ton. Research work carried on in the recent past indicates that considerable improvement has been effected in grade concentrates and mill recovery.

The mining in the Porcupine mountains vicinity, it is indicated should proceed along lines of low cost production, much lower than other underground properties in the United States. It will be necessary to highly mechanize White Pine when the production stage is reached.

Production of 2,300 tons of ore a day will involve an estimated expenditure of five to seven million dollars. To handle 15,000 tons and better a day would cost from fifteen to seventeen million dollars.

Conceded is the fact that Copper Range must get the mining, milling and allied smelting processes ironed out before going ahead to the blueprint stage. It is indicated, according to reports, however, that some form of work may begin before the end of 1950. What action is taken at White Pine will depend on the quotation at which copper is finally stabilized.

Ester Tufty Writes For Escanaba Press

The Escanaba Daily Press has engaged Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, noted Washington correspondent, to represent this newspaper in the national capital.

Mrs. Tufty will write a "Michigan in Washington" column regularly for the Press and also will send local angle dispatches of special interest to readers in Escanaba, Gladstone, Manistique and other communities in this territory.

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty is more than a reporter. She is a newspaper personality.

Frequently, she makes news herself as she did when the British government made her "an ambassador without portfolio" to speak, write and broadcast from the target areas during the blitz. This Washington newspaper personality has one of the historic old houses in Alexandria, Va. She is the tall mother of two tall sons, one a former Naval air pilot. She is the honorary mayor of Traverse City which she helped to make famous for its national cherry festival.

Mrs. Tufty is a former president of the Women's National Press club. She was the first Washington newspaper woman to leave the country as an accredited war correspondent in World War II.

Mrs. Tufty has been the subject of several magazine articles. Referring to her as The Dutchess, Time magazine said in its October 11, 1948 issue:

"The visiting correspondent was the feistiest and one of the brassiest women of the Washington press corps, and she covered Germany like a rough-riding Valkyrie. She descended on Berlin via the airlift, sitting on bags of coal. She slept in Hitler's air raid bunker, interviewed General Clay, went shopping with a German hausfrau on the Kurfurstendamm.

In Munich's America House, where she made a speech. Correspondent Esther Van Wagoner Tufty caused the biggest stir of all. They thought I was Emmy Göring!" said she. "I must say I represented that. Hell, she's at least ten years older than I am." All this she reported in her homy, wish-you-were-here dispatches.

Last week hustling Mrs. Tufty was back at her regular job of covering the capital for 31 papers from Texas, Michigan and New Jersey.

The Duchess, as she likes to be called, dashed up to Manhattan, her pinc-neat dangling wildly at her bosom, for a television gabfest with her good friend, Mary Margaret McBride.

A native of Pontiac, Mich., Mrs. Tufty worked 12 years on the Evanston, Ill., News-Index before going to Washington. In addition to her writing, she appears on two radio network programs regularly in Washington.

NEAR DROWNING
HERE THURSDAYSwift Current Catches
Youthful Swimmer

The waters of Indian River—the same spot where Thomas Mahoney lost his life two weeks ago—came very near claiming another life Thursday afternoon when Wayne Wolfe, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Maryland Wolfe, 140 South Third street, was caught in the swift undercurrent near the bridge.

Wayne and a number of other boys of his own age, including his brother Forrest, were swimming in the vicinity of the bridge. Swimming in the slower waters of the stream, the boys were making a practice of swimming to a post at the edge of the swift water and back to shore. Wayne did this but failed to grasp the post firmly enough and was swept into the stream. A moment later the undercurrent forced him under. He was unconscious when his brother Forrest grabbed him and brought him to shore with the assistance of the other boys.

Whether Boy Scout training or tramping at the daily swim school out to Indian Lake was brought into play, is not known, but the boys worked on him and when Wayne still remained unconscious, he was rushed to the Manistique Clinic where Dr. Merle Wehner applied the necessary restoratives. The doctor praised the boys for very effective work.

Wayne who is a Daily Press carrier, is back on the job today—but still a bit weak from the ordeal.

Small Town Big Top

Circus Day is a big day on the small town calendar. Long before the circus pulls into town, the folks, young and old, tingle with excitement. The advance guard arrives in a blatantly decorated railroad car, men with paste pots and multi-colored posters to decorate walls and fences, agents to secure the necessary licenses and purchase food for hundreds of people and animals.

Then comes the grand day. The kids roll out in the early dawn to watch the unloading of the cars, and, if necessary, give a hand in the setting up of the tents. The older folks are up early, too, to watch the procession of the animals from the railroad siding to the circus grounds on the outskirts. Then come the afternoon and evening performances. After that, canvases are hauled down, stakes are pulled up, the animals are led into their special cars, and the circus rolls off in the night to the next town.

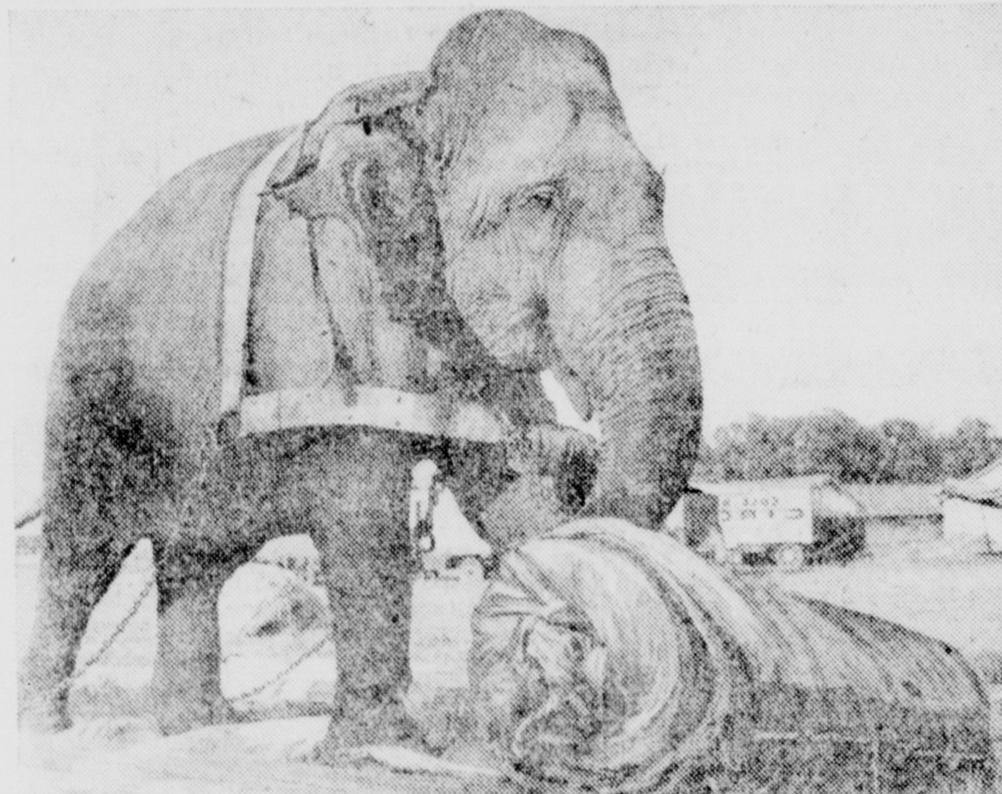

Pictured here is the visit of the Cole Brothers Circus to Tiffin, Ohio, one of the 180 towns on its 1949 schedule which started in Louisville in April and will end when it rolls into its winter quarters at Miami, Fla., in November.

PRELUDE. CIRCUS'S STEAM CALLIOPE PARADES THROUGH DOWNTOWN TIFFIN ANNOUNCING THE APPROACHING SHOW TIME.

WARDROBE mistress Mis-Kate Luckey goes over costume worn by Susan Staley who works elephants in ring and has part in aerial ballet.

FOOTWORK. Blanche uses her trunk and forefoot to unroll canvas.

LENDING THEIR AID. Home-town boys give a hand putting up the tent side walls.

SPUD PEELERS. The circus, like the army, "moves on its stomach." It buys all its food locally.

PROP man Don Lucas digs into hot cakes and bacon.

HARNESS maker W.A. Dyke fits halter on four-day-old pony.

INTRIGUED. Chris Bone, 7, and brother Tom, 9, watch circus clown Horace Laird put on make-up.

Softball Second Half Off To Exciting Start

The second half of the local softball season got away to an exciting start with upsets galore marking the week's activity. Paper Mill blasted Liberty Loan while People's Bar upset Nu-Way on Wednesday. Power and Light came back strong to knock off Northland Stores and the Knights of Columbus nosed out Clairmont Transfer in a mild upset.

SCHOOL GROUPS PLAN MEETINGS

Three Conferences Will Be At Marquette

Three conferences for school administrators and teachers at the Northern Michigan College of Education, Marquette, during the week of July 11-15 were announced today by President H. A. Tape. The Association of College Agreement Schools will meet on Monday and Tuesday, July 11-12; the administrative conference will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 12-13; and the arithmetic conference, entitled "Understanding Arithmetic" will be held on July 13-15. Dr. Lee M. Thurston, superintendent of public instruction, Michigan, will participate in these meetings.

Twelve college agreement schools will open their meeting with a six o'clock dinner on Monday, July 11. They will discuss the following topics in a series of informal meetings: 1. Some interesting curriculum developments in College Agreement Schools. 2. Possible functions of an Association of College Agreement Schools. 3. Criteria for evaluating the progress of College Agreement Schools.

Leon Waskin, assistant superintendent of public instruction, and Fred Walcott, professor of language arts at the University of Michigan, and Glenn Smith, chief of the guidance services division, department of public instruction, will participate as consultants.

The administrative conference will start with the luncheon meeting on Tuesday, July 12. Following the luncheon meeting, the group will break up into discussion groups. These will include:

1. Outdoor education. Consultants, Julian Smith, Glenn Gregg, and Elmer Lacasse.

2. Guidance and testing, consultant, Walter Johnson.

The arithmetic conference will open with registration at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, followed by a college general assembly program. All conference members are invited to hear Professor Louis Gotischalks of the University of Chicago, who will speak on the subject, "How Safe is Democracy."

The conference itself will get under-way at 2:00 p.m. with an address of welcome by H. A. Tape, president of Northern Michigan College of Education, and with remarks by Superintendent Lee M. Thurston. Two papers on the general subject of "Meaning in Arithmetic" will be presented by Lenore John, the Laboratory School, the University of Chicago, and Homes Boynton, Northern Michigan College of Education.

At 9:30 Thursday morning, new films and visual aids in arithmetic will be shown and discussed. Thursday's afternoon session will feature a panel discussion. "Individual Differences in Arithmetic—What can we do for the unusual child?" C. L. Byström, superintendent of schools at Newberry, will preside and Miss Alice M. Dobie, Sault Ste. Marie, Miss Olive G. Gox, Marquette, Mrs. Viola Johnson, and Homes Boynton, Marquette, will be on the panel.

"Improving Problem Solving in Arithmetic" will be the subject of a dinner meeting (6 o'clock) on Thursday, Charlotte Jungs, Associate Professor of Education, Wayne University, Detroit, will be the main speaker, and John A. Lemmer of Escanaba will preside.

The conference will close Friday morning with an address of Professor Raleigh Schorling, University of Michigan, and a summary by conference chairman, Homes Boynton.

Air-Conditioned Bed At Furniture Show

Grand Rapids, Mich.—If you can't sleep these hot nights, how about an air-conditioned bed?

There is one on display at the current Grand Rapids Furniture market.

Shown by Walter B. Stiles, Inc., the bed is low slung and set on casters. The mattress is made of foam rubber with holes at intervals.

Through these holes circulates air from a conditioning unit underneath. The bed can be just as comfortable in winter as in summer because the conditioner is set for either warm or cool air.

Hank Behrman's poor start with the Giants is reminiscent of his 1947 failure with the Pirates. As a result, Pittsburgh returned him to Brooklyn.

FOURTH OF JULY CROWD—ESCANABA

This picture shows part of the crowd at Ludwig Park Monday afternoon during the bathing beauty contest. It was a holiday crowd that varied from 3,000 in the early afternoon to more than 8,000 by the time the fireworks were set off after dark. Included on an interesting program sponsored by the City and the Junior Chamber of Commerce were swimming events, water ballet, Junior Olympics, flying circus, band concert, fireworks and other events.

First Stainless Steel Building Office For G. E.

Schenectady, N. Y., (P)—The

General Electric Co., has put on display the world's first office building built of stainless steel.

The new 460-foot, four story building here will house the offices for a new $30,000,000 turbine plant at the G. E. works.

The so-called "curtain wall" construction is only three inches thick. It is fastened to the steel bones of the building in two feet wide, fluted panels which may be anywhere up to 24 feet long. Each panel interlocks at the side and each section fits snugly over the top of the panel below it.

Two Pittsburgh firms played the leading roles in the development of the new material. Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp. manufactured the steel and the H. H. Robertson Co. helped in research, fabricated the steel sheets into panels and then erected them. The exterior surface of the relatively light weight sheet metal is backed by insulation material and a light-gauge sheet metal interior surface to hold the insulation material in place and permit the erection of panels as individual units.

Allegheny-Ludlum officials hope to see curtain walls of stainless steel on many new buildings. Several sky scrapers now taking form on drawing boards are seriously considering walls of stainless steel. One handicap is building codes which specify walls of greater thickness.

The steelmen assert the codes are obsolete, contending the thick walls add nothing to strength. "In fact," said an Allegheny-Ludlum spokesman, "walls are not only to keep heat or cold out and to keep people from falling out of the building."

Deo Directs N. A. D. A. In National Capital

By ESTHER TUFTY

Washington—Robert Deo, the new managing director of the National Automobile Dealers Association, often finds himself, these days, longing for the cool breezes of Escanaba. This is hardly surprising, for in Washington the temperature hovers between 90 and 100 day and night, and the humidity is always high.

As managing director of N. A. D. A. Deo, who practiced law in Escanaba for nearly 11 years, rates a fine air conditioned office in the swish Defense building. He's grateful for the cool office, and doesn't begrudge his hours force him to spend in it.

No one can deny this Michigan man has a demanding job. N. A. D. A., according to Deo, is the trade association of new car dealers. It has more than 34,000 members who expect Deo and his staff to keep them informed on current trends of car sales, legislation affecting car dealers, and to protect their interests. In Deo's words, "NADA is the information clearing house for new auto dealers."

Wage And Hour Law

The legislation about which Deo is most concerned right now is the proposed revision of wage and hour law. N. A. D. A. isn't primarily interested in minimum wage, but wants the new law to be crystal clear as to what groups come under it. Specifically, Deo says, the law should exempt retail trade establishments from the provisions of the law. That, of course, would exempt all car dealers.

Deo, now 41, but doesn't look it, has had plenty of experience with Congress and governmental agencies during his four years with

ROBERT DEO

Deo stepped into the job. He was general counsel for N. A. D. A. until June 1948, when the executive committee unanimously selected him the managing director.

Deo is really an all Michigan product. Born in North Branch, he attended the University of Michigan and Michigan Law School. Looking back, he thinks it particularly fortunate he decided to study law. Many of his college classmates peddled stocks and bonds after graduating in 1928. "Of course, that blew up the next year," Deo recalls.

MARRIED MARJORIE NEE

Deo went to Escanaba when he finished law, in 1932. He eventually became a member of the firm Frost and Deo, and met Marjorie Nee, who is now his wife. "She spells her first name with two 'e's so it will rhyme with her last," smiles Deo. They have two children, Mary, age three, and Jane, age 11.

One of the most interesting publications reviewed by N. A. D. A.—it is prepared by an affiliated organization—is the price guide book for used car dealers. This volume, which is revised monthly, lists the going price on used cars by year and make.

Deo says the economic picture is changing so rapidly that this volume does not now have its usual value. The prices used cars bring are changing faster than the book is printed. Last month's price will be, he says, not much of an indication of what this month's price will be. Deo says this indicates the market for cars new and used, is not as large as it was after the war. The demand of the public are being met.

If work permits, Deo hopes to spend part of this summer in Escanaba. He still has his home there; "the delightful summer climate" is one of the main attractions. But on the whole, this Michigan man finds Washington a delightful city too, and excluding heat, he has no complaints.

Saginaw, (P)—The Coast Guard auxiliary division in this area has set up an elaborate air-sea rescue service which can swing into action on a moment's notice on Saginaw Bay. The group of civilian volunteers has 19 boats and 14 planes ready for use.

Catholic Information

Is golf on a Sunday unholy?

"The Catholic Sunday seems to end at noon!"

"Noon? Look at the golf courses! Plenty of Catholics out there every Sunday from 9 a. m. till dark. And I know some who play cards for money on Sunday evenings—members of the holy Catholic Church!"

He modestly claims his association with N. A. D. A. came about by near accident. During the war Deo left his Escanaba law firm when requested to become regional attorney for the Office of Defense Transportation in Philadelphia. He didn't stay in the Quaker City very long. During a visit to the capital, he stopped by N. A. D. A. to see a friend. The friend was leaving the association, and was walking over God's hills and vales on a Sunday unholy, because, while walking, I knock before me a little white ball? Is sitting in my home 'midst friends of a Sunday evening unholy because, while sitting, we deal out bits of card-board and perhaps bet small sums to lend interest to the game?

If my golf or my cards interfere with my worship or the worship or peace of my neighbor—if these games bring with them anger, blasphemy, envy, cheating, or some other sin—if the money lost is injurious to my family or my creditors—then, and only then, according to my conscience, are my games unholy on a Sunday—and on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, or Saturday.

The Catholic's way of keeping Sunday holy is his own. For the non-Catholic who observes Sunday sincerely in another manner, the Catholic has nothing but the greatest respect. This same respect he asks from his neighbors of other creeds, who, we believe, must also give the Catholic credit for sincerity.

If every man had true knowledge of the creed or philosophy of every other man, all-around good-will would be engendered. We Catholics seek your good-will. Hence these little articles!

If it's anything Catholic, ask a Catholic!
